

IMPROV WORKSHOPS WITH KLAUS PETER SCHREINER INTERACTION, INSPIRATION, EMOTION...

Workshop for improv groups (6 to 12 hours)

Truthfulness In Improv

In this workshop for improv groups Klaus emphasizes the creation of truthful stories. How can we add depth to a scene? How can we use emotions to make the narration credible? What can being attentive and being in the moment contribute to authenticity? How can we make the audience care about the characters? How can we use truthfulness to entertain?

Often improv simply tries to be funny, but there are so many more ways improvisation theatre can be used to captivate an audience. This will be practised in a highly motivational and fun atmosphere encouraging improvisers to explore their skills of expressing emotion.

Klaus has for many years been teaching improv in Germany, Austria and more recently in Britain. He has studied under international masters like Keith Johnstone, with whom he has collaborated as a workshop interpreter in Germany. Klaus is fascinated by the magic of human interaction both on and off the stage and the process of creating stories, both of which he continues to explore in his workshops emphasising fun, creativity and encouragement.
