

IMPROV WORKSHOPS WITH KLAUS PETER SCHREINER INTERACTION, INSPIRATION, EMOTION...

Workshop for theatre groups (6 to 12 hours)

Improvisation Techniques For The Stage

In this workshop for theatre groups Klaus makes the participants familiar with easy-to-use acting techniques. How can we portray a character truthfully? How can we use status (giving/demanding respect) to make relations between characters believable? What can being attentive and being in the moment contribute to authenticity? What can we do to make the others look good?

The techniques introduced in this workshop are mainly used in improv but they are essential tools for anyone performing on stage. They help an ensemble work as a team and make us aware of what goes on underneath the surface of a scene or play. These things will be practised in a highly motivational and fun atmosphere encouraging actors to explore their acting and their interpersonal skills.

Klaus has for many years been teaching improv in Germany, Austria and more recently in Britain. He has studied under international masters like Keith Johnstone, with whom he has collaborated as a workshop interpreter in Germany. Klaus is fascinated by the magic of human interaction both on and off the stage and the process of creating stories, both of which he continues to explore in his workshops emphasising fun, creativity and encouragement.
